A BRITISH REVERSE AT DUNDÉE

One Hundred British Killed and Wounded.
General Buller's Force Retreated to Ladysmith.
A General Engagement Expected
To-day or To-morrow. One Hundred Thousand Boers Under Arms.

All despatches from South Africa indicate that another big battle is imminent. Transvaal and Free State forces have concentrated seven miles from Ladysmith on the direct route to Dundee. Gen. Buller, who succeeded Gen. Buller, has evacuated Dundee, and is falling back on Ladysmith by a circuitous route there to join Gen. Buller. Whether the two British forces totaling 12,000 men have united is a matter of conjecture. The situation is grave. Gen. Buller is marching on Mafeking with a large force, and is treating British territory as if it was Transvaal. Seizing supplies on every hand. The position at Kimberley is unchanged, the enemy being in the same position at Spytfontein. The British wounded at Dundee are all Boer prisoners of war.

The censorship of press despatches is seriously affecting the news from Africa. The war office publishes a report that Boers, comprising 80 officers and men, have been captured by Boers; 30 Boers made a brilliant retreat being pursued for miles by the enemy. Reports of yesterday's fighting are meagre, but it appears that the British loss was serious. The total being 13 killed and 88 wounded. Gen. Buller is doing well. The Boers now have 100,000 men under arms. A powerful British squadron has sailed south.

Winnipeg and Portage la Prairie contingent left for South Africa yesterday amid the cheering of thousands. The afternoon had been proclaimed a half holiday, and the night witnessed on the streets has never been surpassed. The men were presented with $50 apiece, the amount, $2,900, having been voluntarily subscribed by citizens.

This Bazaar has secured a sample sack of the Dowling Milling Co's patent process flour. In appearance the flour leaves nothing to be desired, and its results in bread are altogether superior. LECTOR LACHAPPELLE, of St. Albert, returned on Monday from his trip towards the Klondike by way of the Liard river. LaChapelle was so unfortunate as to be accidentally the cause of the death of Simonson, a Swede, who was wintering in the same shanty. In handling a revolver he went off his head, and Simonson was shot dead. LaChapelle came out to Telegraph creek and gave himself up to the police. But as the affair was an accident he was not detained. LaChapelle is the man who founded the body of Martin McNevelly, of Saint Marie. It was found in December last on the south bank of the Liard at the Drowned rapids. The body was in a small tent. There was a sheet iron stove, some flour and bacon. The body had remained there for a whole year without being disturbed. The body was buried and the belongings handed over to the police at Telegraph creek. The unfortunate man had frozen his feet and became unable to travel, and no doubt death had resulted from the condition of his feet. LaChapelle was hunting moose in company with a Mr. Cole, of Minnesota, when the body was found. Jos. Kluthe was of the party who started with LaChapelle from St. Albert.

TRANSVAAL WAR.

The Transvaal and Orange Free State for the purposes of this war are one country. Except towards the northeast they are surrounded by British Territory. On the northeast is a strip of Portuguese Territory between the Transvaal and the sea. Through this strip to the Portuguese port of Lorenzo, Marquês, is the shortest railway line from the centre of the Transvaal to the sea, and the principal business of the republic goes over it. Adjoining the Portuguese strip on the south and between the Transvaal and Free State and the sea is the British province of Natal. A railway runs from Durban to the port of Natal, to Johannesburg in the Transvaal with a branch into the Orange Free State. This is the shortest line from the sea to the Transvaal through British Territory, and is the line upon which the British will probably make their principal attack, as they did in 1881. On this side the Transvaal and Free State are both protected by the Drakensburg range of mountains. It was in the passes through this range that the British defeated Laing's Nek and Majuba Hill took place. A short distance to the northeast, in what was Zululand, but is now part of Natal, the battlefield of Isandula, is situated the scene of a British defeat by the Zulus. South of the Orange Free State is Cape Colony, the Orange river being the boundary. The Free State is reached near Springfontein by railways from the ports of East London, Port Elizabeth and Cape Town, but the distance is much greater from the sea than by way of Natal west of the Free State and Transvaal is the British Territory of Bechuanaland. The railroad from Cape Town passes northward through Bechuanaland close to the Free State and Transvaal border all the way until the border of the Transvaal bears away to the northeastward, and the railroad continues on to Bulawayo, in Rhodesia. Kimberly, the city of the diamond fields is on this line adjoining the Free State boundary and between the Orange and Vaal rivers. Mafeking is 200 miles further north close to the Transvaal border and celebrated as the starting point of the Jameson raid. On this side the republics have no protection in the nature of the country as on the Natal side. Their only protection is the distance of these British posts from the sea.

North of the Transvaal is Rhodesia formerly Matabele and Mashonaland. The Limpopo river is the north boundary of the Transvaal. In Rhodesia, Bulawayo, the principal town of Matabeleland is the terminus of the Cape railway. Salisbury, the chief town of Mashonaland is reached by the Beira railway from the sea through a port in Portuguese territory which lies along the coast some hundreds of miles north of the Transvaal port of Lorenzo, Marquês.

Kimberly and Mafeking are as it were the back door of the republics while the passes through the Drakensburg range are the front door. There is little danger of attack from the Cape Colony side of the Orange Free State partly because of the distance from the sea and partly because of the sympathy of the Boer population of Cape Colony on the south side of the Orange river. Neither is there much fear from Rhodesia, as the small British population and force there would naturally have enough to do to hold their own black neighbors in check, and they could not easily be re-inforced directly from the sea.

The object of the Boer declaration of war—for that was really the purpose of the so-called ultimatum—was to get the opportunity to close the back door of the two republics by capturing Kimberly and Mafeking before the garrisons, which were on a peace footing could be re-inforced from the Cape by rail, as they could be in a few days if the railway were left in operation. As soon, therefore, as war was declared the railway was torn up between Kimberly and Mafeking, and both places were invested by the forces of Boers. As Kimberly is only about 60 miles north of the Orange river no serious difficulty has been found in re-inforcing it. Besides there is very little doubt that as Mafeking was more outlying from the Cape and nearer to the centre of the Transvaal difficult to relieve than Kimberly, the principal attack of the Boers towards the west was delivered there. Once the railway was destroyed and the wires cut, Mafeking was isolated from the British, and news from there is largely rumor, picked up from refugees, both black and white rather than derived from official despatches. Of course the Boer capital is in close touch with the investing force, and any successes on their side are promptly and fully reported. The capture of the armored train, the occupation of Vryburg town and police post half way between Kimberly and Mafeking, as well as the villages on the line near Mafeking were soon heard of by way of Pretoria. As there have been no reports of actions fought at Mafeking from that source, it is reasonable to suppose that so far the Boers have not met with signal success. Indeed the rumors of victories by the small force besieged there under Col. Baden-Powell, which have reached the Cape are somewhat confirmed by the Volks newspaper of Pretoria, mentioning some days ago that the Boer casualties up to that time numbered seventy. Mafeking was the only point at which fighting had taken place up to that time. The same paper also reported that the besieging forces under General Cronje had sent for heavier artillery. Whether Mafeking can hold out until relieved is a question, but in any case the little garrison is keeping a large force of Boers employed, and by holding them in check, weakening that prestige which was the principal incentive of the Boer forces, and which gave confidence to their sympathizers in Cape Colony and Natal.

Rhodesia is of course cut off from the Cape by the break in the railway at Mafeking. Whether the Boers are invading Rhodesia, or whether Col. Plumer, the British commander, is advancing with 5,000 men to the relief of Mafeking, or whether matters remain quiet on the northern, as on the southern frontier is not known.

Northwest of Natal, on the east boundary of the republics was the theatre of the military operations of Friday and Saturday last, Oct. 20th and 21st. A tongue of Natal projects for a long distance between the Free State and Transvaal until it terminates at the pass of Laing's Nek in the Drakensburg Mountains through which the railway runs from Durban to Johannesburg. On the Natal side of the pass is the village of Charlton. Further back is Newcastle, still further back, Glencoe, with Dundee, and its coal mines a few miles to the north on a branch line, and still further south at the point where the railway sends a branch westward into the Orange Free State, is Ladysmith. This is the headquarters of the British force. The British had withdrawn from the advanced positions of Charlton and Newcastle, but held Ladysmith, 189 miles from Durban and Glencoe 41 miles further on. On the 12th and 13th the Boers invaded Natal in three columns, one from the Free State, and two from the Transvaal, converging upon Newcastle. They numbered 16,000 men commanded by Gens. Joubert and Rooke. As they brought artillery and a great supply train, no doubt they meant this for an attack in force, hoping to wipe out the British forces before the arrival of reinforcements. Not finding the British at Newcastle they moved forward evidently intending to capture Dundee first, or at least cut the British command in two at Elands-laagte. Considerable skirmishing took place on Thursday in which there were a number of casualties on both sides and on Friday morning the Boers occupied a hill overlooking Dundee, and began to shell the British camp. Their artillery fire was ineffective, many of their shells failing to explode. The British artillery replied with a most effective fire silencing the Boer artillery before noon. At the same time the King's Royal rifles and Dublin Fusiliers attacked the Boers in front, and the 14th Hussars and the Leicester regiment took position to flank them in their retreat. The rifles and Fusiliers carried the hill in splendid style capturing the Boer cannon. The Hussars and the Leicesters did their work well also turning the Boer defeat to a rout. Losses were heavy on both sides being reported as 250 British and 800 Boers. The British losses included the General Symons.

On the day following, Saturday, Oct. 21st, that part of the Boer army to which had been assigned the duty of cutting the British forces in two, were attacked at Elands-laagte by the British and signally defeated with heavy loss. Gen. Jan Rook, in command, was killed and many prisoners were taken. The British loss was 150. The British troops taking part included the Gordon Highlanders, the 5th Lancashire 5th dragoon guards, the Manchester and Imperial light horse, Gen. Stewart White is the British commander at Ladysmith.

SOME NORTHERN GRAIN.

E. J. Lawrence, who arrived last week from Fort Vermilion on Peace river, 350 miles north of Edmonton, brought in with him some surprising samples of grain grown and matured on his farm at Vermilion. These grains, in the straw, are on exhibition in the Bulletin office and speak for themselves as to the fertility of the Vermilion soil and the possibility of successful agriculture along the Peace river valley. The varieties are oats, barley and wheat, Ladoga and Red Fife. In the straw they stand nearly 6 ft. in height and the grain is perfectly matured and hardened. The crop was sown on the 24th April and harvested on the 26th August. Harvesting actually commenced on the 22nd August and would have commenced on the 18th, but was interfered with by wet weather. Continual rainy weather was experienced at Vermilion during the summer. Mr. Lawrence explains that the samples brought down by him were not picked from a patch specially cultivated for exhibition purposes, but that he has 3000 bushels of the same quality of grain. He has been raising crops at Vermilion for 20 years and never had a failure, and only in one year, 1884, was the crop injured by frost. He has 100 acres under cultivation, and H. H. Lawrence, had an equal area in crop. Altogether there are about another 100 acres under crop in the settlement, making a total acreage of cultivated land of 300 acres. In the settlement there are also about 400 head of cattle.

The battle at Glencoe occurred on Friday, the 20th, and lasted about eight hours. The King's Royal rifles who took part are the old 60th rifles who were defeated at Laing's Nek in 1881.

The British losses were General Symons mortally wounded, ten officers and 31 men killed and 20 officers and 151 men wounded. A full list of the killed and wounded has been published.

HOCKEY.

The hockey club elected the following officers on Tuesday evening: Patron, Frank Oliver, M. P.; vice-patron, J. H. Morris; president, Thos. Hourston; first vice-president, Rev. Henry Allen Gray; second vice, S. LaRue; secretary-treasurer, R. G. Hardisty; captain, H. Campbell; executive committee, H. Aldridge; C. McClung and W. A. Griesbach.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Tuesday was a fine day and Wednesday was still finer. A light snow fell on Monday night, but this was cleared off by the warm sun of yesterday. Roads are good but a little muddy on the surface. Stacking and threshing are in progress. Stacked grain is all right for threshing, but grain in the stock has not been fit for threshing since the snow fell. Thos. who have threshed have made a mistake as their grain will be damp. Some settlements reports potatoes well out of the ground, while in other parts a large proportion are still in the ground. No very great damage has been done yet. If warm weather comes for a few days they will be all right.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

Meetings of Baptist ministers and delegates were held in the Baptist church here on Tuesday at 10 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. in connection with the organization of an association of the Baptist church for Alberta. There were present Rev. M. Litch, of Calgary; Rev. Mr. Samis, of Olds; Rev. Mr. McQuarrie, of Sturgeon; Rev. Mr. Applin, of Wetaskiwin; Rev. Mr. McDonald, Strathcona, and Rev. Mr. Freeman, Edmonton. R. Ritchie, of Strathcona, was present as a delegate.

A public meeting was held in the Baptist church in the evening at 8 o'clock which was addressed by Rev. Mr. Litch, of Calgary. There was a good attendance.

On Wednesday meetings were held at the same hour in the Baptist church in Strathcona. The visiting ministers left for home to-day.

MARKETS.

Deliveries of oats have been light this week, but yesterday showed some improvement. Oats are not coming in fast enough to fill orders. Prices remain the same as before, 23c for feed oats on this side and 25c for milling oats at the mill in Strathcona.

Wheat is being purchased by the mills at prices according to quality. Fifty cents is the supposed limit, but over that figure is paid in some cases. This is a fraction over export rate. There is a great deal of shrunken wheat in the district, but little or none frozen, and there is a good deal of No. 1.

Barley is only grown in small quantity, and owing to the unfavorable fall very little of it will be fit for malting.

Hay and green feed is in fair supply at $5 to $6 a ton.

The coal famine of the past two weeks is over, owing to milder weather, and the mines getting into running order.

Butter stands at 20c for best fresh roll, and is a little more plentiful.

Eggs are a little more plentiful at 25c.

Potatoes 20c to 25c, and in good supply.

DR. BELL RETURNS.

Dr. Bell and party arrived from the north on Tuesday. The Dr. has been engaged during the past summer in making a geological and topographical examination of Great Slave lake. His nephew Prof. Bell was left to continue the work and will remain all winter at Resolution. The shores of the lake have been traversed all around, so that there will now be an authoritative map of the whole lake including the northern arm on which Fort Rae is situated. Dr. Bell would not say anything as to the prospects of valuable mineral finds there, reserving that for his final report. The party were 40 days coming up the river from Resolution. On Thursday last the 19th, they met ice in the Athabasca when about 20 miles from the Landing. They had great difficulty in getting along. The West-head and several other parties who were along with them were compelled to abandon their boats there, and came to the Landing on foot. Mrs. West-head was given passage with Dr. Bell's party. There was much more snow at the Landing than at Edmonton and the weather there has been much colder. Dr. Bell left for Ottawa on this morning's train.
